Our Social Footprints

FROM THE LEADER

Some moments in school don't just fill pages — they fill hearts.

Learning came alive this quarter — in classrooms, on ramps, through workshops, and out in the world.

Our youngest learners explored textures in the Sensory Play Garden, strutted in the Show & Tell Healthy Food Ramp Walk, and engaged in joyful math through market role-plays. Primary students wowed us with a Maths Fashion Show and animated their imaginations on Technology Day. Our drama workshop sparked storytelling, while enriching excursions to museums and theatres deepened curiosity.

Leadership blossomed as students campaigned in the Student Council Elections and pledged service at the Investiture Ceremony. On the field, inter-house football matches and the Summer Sports Camp built team spirit, while achievements in chess, cricket, and taekwondo made us beam with pride.

At Khaitan World School, every child's experience matters. Through initiatives like Funshala, parent workshops, plantation drives, and inclusive celebrations with our support staff, we continue to build a culture where everyone belongs.

As you read Buzz@KWS, may you feel the joy, the purpose, and the togetherness that make this school a shared home for all of us.

Thank you for being an integral part of this journey.

Warmly,
Mamta Kapoor
Director Principal

THE EDUCATOR'S VOICE

PARENTING INSIGHTS FOR THE MODERN AGE

As a teacher, I've seen many parents struggle to understand their child's behavior. But what if I told you that there's a simple yet powerful solution? 🤝 Understanding the root cause of your child's behavior can make a huge difference.

The Power of Reflection

When we react impulsively without reflecting on why our child is behaving in a certain way, we might miss the opportunity to address the underlying issue. By taking a step back and observing, we can solve half the problem.

The big 5 : Essential Parenting Tips

1. Practice Mindfulness: Be present in the moment with your child, and respond thoughtfully. This can help reduce stress and improve your relationship with your child.

2. Validate Their Emotions: Acknowledge and accept your child's feelings, even if you don't agree with their perspective. This can help your child develop emotional intelligence and build resilience. 💪

3. Set Clear Boundaries: Establish consistent rules and consequences to help your child develop self-discipline and responsibility.

4. Encourage Independence: Give your child opportunities to make choices and take responsibility for their actions. This can help build confidence and self-esteem. 🌟

5. Model Emotional Intelligence: Show your child how to manage emotions, empathize with others, and build strong relationships. This can help your child develop essential life skills. 🤝

THE IMPORTANCE OF GENERAL AWARENESS FOR SCHOOL CHILDREN

In today's fast-changing world, it is not enough for children to just master academics—they also need to understand the world around them. That's where General Awareness plays a vital role. When students are exposed to real-world topics like current events, environmental changes, innovations and global cultures, they begin to connect their classroom learning with everyday life.

In our classrooms, we often find that students who are more aware of their surroundings ask thoughtful questions, participate more actively in discussions, and show curiosity that goes beyond textbooks. Whether it is a conversation about climate change, a news headline, or a story of a young inventor, these moments spark engagement and broaden their thinking.

Building general awareness helps students become informed citizens, ready to contribute meaningfully to society. It also strengthens critical thinking, empathy and communication—skills essential for the 21st century.

As educators, we have the opportunity to bring the world into the classroom. A short discussion during morning connect or a question of the day can go a long way in developing well-rounded learners. After all, a child who is aware today, becomes a responsible individual tomorrow.
